Forecast For London & Southeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Tuesday 16 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
A damp morning for many, very gradually improving. Cold overnight.

Today:
Cloudy and damp for many, with western parts probably brightest. Gradually becoming drier and brighter generally from the northwest during the afternoon, perhaps allowing some late sunny spells for many. Mild in the west, colder and breezy in the east. Maximum temperature 15 deg C (59 deg F).

Tonight:
Becoming generally fine with clear spells into the evening. Temperatures will fall away to allow a slight rural frost in western parts, while eastern parts should stay rather windy. Minimum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Wednesday:
A fine, chilly start for many, followed by some warm sunny spells in the west especially. The east is likely to be cloudier however, perhaps with some light rain later. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Periodically rather cloudy and breezy through this period, with some sunshine but also spells of mostly light rain, especially Thursday. Temperatures perhaps becoming rather cold, accentuated by the breeze.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.